

Dear Sirs,

This is the only letter I have ever written to our government.

I feel strongly that there should be no weakening of current restrictions in place for telemarketers making calls to Indiana residences. Since I signed up for the "no call list" I can actually answer my phone without any automatic ill feelings. I went from answering the phone with a constant aggravated "HELLO", that often set the wrong tone for many personal calls, to a more pleasant "Hello". I didn't even realize I was doing this. It is a point that I discussed often with many friends and business contacts. Most agreed that they too had changed their attitudes about even answering their phones. The two or more unsolicited calls a day that I received daily, before Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law is enough to make me drop my service now. I enjoy the newfound attitude towards our telephone. I will not go back, now! Internet service is the only thing that has kept me from doing so already, but it is not enough to keep me once I experienced phone service without all the solicitors.
